Dear Kiwanis Club of San Diego,

I would like to take this letter to thank you in a more appropriate form. I would first like to tell you, that your award to me will be well spent and utilized. As you may know it is getting more and more difficult not just for disabled students but for all students to get an equal and fair level of education in this country. It is to that end that I applaud you for the support of America's youth and no matter how discouraging it may be I encourage and cheer you on to continue in this fashion. We need more organizations that do the things you do for our community.

Second I would like to tell you about my personal plans for the future since I feel I did not get as full of opportunity to tell you at the luncheon. I'm interested and have become quite accomplished in the field of drama as a director, writer, and producer of my own work as well as that of other's. I hope to continue this first at Palomar and later at U.C. Santa Cruz as a Liberal Arts major. From there I plan to try to break into my chosen field as a professional. I will never forget the support that San Diego Kiwanis gave me and will always feel proud that you chose to honor me for my Accomplishments. I hope to keep in touch with you in regards to my progress.

Sincerely,

Erik D. Shive

The Kiwanis Club

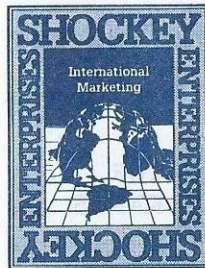

The heart of Kiwanis is the club itself. Each club is composed of men in a wide variety of occupations, representing the active forces of the community. Each Kiwanis club has officers and directors as prescribed by the bylaws of the club. These officers and directors comprise the Board of Directors, the administrative body of the club. Clubs perform their community service work and their internal administration through standing committees. Each member is assigned to one or more of these, depending upon his particular desires and aptitudes.

All Kiwanis clubs are organized according to a standard basic plan. Each club has great freedom in developing its own service projects, fund-raising activities, meeting procedures, customs, and character. Each club, through its own imagination and growth, lends flavor and excitement to the entire Kiwanis organization as it adapts the ideals and Constitutional Objects of Kiwanis to its own nation and community.
