"Rise Up So Early In The Morn"

This problem of "early risers" poses a two-pronged problem to your president. There is nothing quite so disconcerting to a speaker, or a chairman as to have what appears to be a rush for the exit just as the chairman begins his introduction of the speaker of the day. To the uninitiated it looks like a rudeness incompatible with Kiwanis standards of gentlemanly consideration for a guest, who in most instances, is giving us his time and talent. It becomes particularly embarrassing when the exodus is made conspicuous by departures from tables clearly in view from the rostrum.

A 15,748 "TEAM" ...

SAN DIEGO COUNTY BOY SCOUTS Celebrate 45th year of the Boy Scouts of America

Ralph Dorian

If you have seen him on a hike, you have seen him fifty times. He is the valiant little guy at the end of the line toting a knapsack that might have been designed for a giant. He will skip from time to time and then with a frantic burst of energy run a few steps, then with the measured tread of a palace guard he will march several steps in perfect time—only to fall back, then skip and run again.

He is loaded with enough camp gear to have outfitted every pathfinder from Daniel Boone to Kit Carson—equipment which swings, jerks, rattles, and twists at every step. Trousers, too, present a problem (or rather the problem comes from his lack of hips on which to hang them) and they hang perilously in a style completely his own. His face bathed in sweat, he battles arrogant garments and wholly uncooperative camping equipment with a firm-handed persistence. He is bigger than a little boy; smaller than a big boy. He is suffering at the thought of having to drop out but glorying in the fact that he is staying in. He is a brand new Boy Scout and he is part of the team.

An impressive team it is, too. Some three million strong in the United States and with over 15,748 Scouts served by 5,412 volunteer men and women in San Diego County alone.

The program was made possible through the years by the excellent service of thousands upon thousands of mothers and dads and men interested in serving youth, men like Colonel Milton McRae, John Bacon, Gerry Thorn, our own Harvey Atherton and countless thousands of others.

and explaining the procedure to our speaker and head table guests. It has been suggested to me that this practice may perhaps encourage early departures. That is the other horn of the dilemma.

Honestly now, do you really have to leave early? Each of us when we became Kiwanians knew that attendance at our meetings was a condition of membership. It was made plain to us that our meetings were not just congenial luncheon gatherings. Participation in the whole program is an essential part of our fellowship. I know what it is to be busy and to have pressing demands upon one's time, however I believe that most of us can plan our days to permit complete participation in our Tuesday meetings. But when you find it really necessary to rise up so early, do please sit at a table where your departure will be as inconspicuous as possible.

On the few occasions when I've had to run out I've always left with an uncomfortably guilty feeling. I know all you good Kiwanians suffer the same twinges of conscience. And of course every member should leave our meetings feeling good, not guilty. To fix that—from now on you'll see one of our usually jolly Sergeants at Arms standing there at the door, a reproachful look in his eye, and contribution box silently extended. A small penance and then with clear conscience . . . Vaya con Dios, compadre.

Les
