

Something to work for # International Public Affairs Committee urges change by eliminating unnecessary Government Bureaus

Kiwanis International has all during this wartime period been taking into account the various phases of governmental work and has taken definite stand against those things which have been most flagrant in violation of citizenship right.

At the last council meeting held at Chicago a few days ago, George E. Stringfellow, Chairman of Kiwanis International Public Affairs Committee in a prepared address before that body sternly called for a factual and nonpartisan elimination of Wartime Bureaus of Controls and unnecessary peacetime offices and employees.

In an Associated Press item from Chicago in the morning's Union, he declared: "Clear distinction should be made between the bureaus which are needed for necessary governmental control and those which were necessary only for wartime functioning or, because of their character, threaten the free enterprise system which is responsible for the nation's pre-eminence."

The talk will no doubt be printed in the next Kiwanis Magazine and we would urge members to watch the next issues of Kiwanis Magazine for much worthwhile reading along this and similar lines of thought from Kiwanis Leaders.

About the Hockey Game

Committee entitled to much praise and the thanks of the Club.

By the time this copy of the Tidings reaches you, the Hockey Game will have been completed and undoubtedly our coffers for the benefit of our Welfare Fund shall have been enriched to cover at least our present plans of operation in welfare work.

It was unfortunate however, that this game could not have been slated for some week-day night rather than Sunday as many members have their Sundays taken up with other regular activities and do not feel that Sunday is the best day for such an occasion. However, this is the only night that these games can be held and so the committee could not effect any change in the day and we will just have to abide by circumstances over which we have no control.

The thanks of the club go to Clayton Phair and his committee for their untiring work and effort to make this a success and we hope they will have been able to work out a future deal to "keep it up."

Be wise like an owl. Send that photo!!!

Pictures, pictures and pictures are still wanted to complete our roster. It would be nice if we could have the picture of every member for our Silver Anniversary so why not accommodate the rest of the members by having your's taken at once.

Please sign attendance slip

Members are again becoming very lax in their making out attendance tickets and undoubtedly several have been marked "missing" that were present.

The secretary tries to mark up those whose tickets are not made out but has missed several in the past few weeks so please do not forget to mark up your attendance ticket as soon as you enter the room. This will assist greatly in keeping more correct records.
